SHERIFF BELLOTTI'S DISTRACTED DRIVING PROGRAM VISITS KING PHILIP HIGH SCHOOL

More than 100 students from King Philip Regional High School took part recently in Norfolk County Sheriff Michael Bellotti's distracted driving program. The program illustrates the dangers of driving while texting or while impaired.

"We want our young people to be safe at all times, and that certainly includes when they're in a car, whether by themselves or with friends," Sheriff Bellotti said. "This program drives that point home."
